This program helps you keep your data safe when your HDD fails, such as computer crashes, power surges, or sudden disk failures. The data on your HDD is constantly being overwritten with new data from your available disc space. This is especially true with USB storage devices, which are prone to data loss due to their lower cost, lower quality, and lower capacities. Our program does not fix the drives where the data is lost, but simply helps you save a copy of the data on your hard disk. If your hard disk fails and you need to recover your data, simply boot your computer from a disc or USB flash drive and run a special application that will scan your disk for your files and store them on the new storage device. fileflip Clone is a free utility to help you save your data from the drives that you can no longer access. Manganese Menu was made to provide, like many other software, a customizable display of the icons associated with the applications that you use. User Review 4 by chris10 Great application. Maybe I made a slight mistake in the GUI, but when running a shortcut in the tray it doesn't change position. If I try and relocate it it changes position. This isn't a problem in the shortcut but when you close the app. It goes to the position set initially. Good, but no menu at all on startup. More of an issue for me than anyone else, because I like to have it floating so I can see it no matter what window I happen to be using. It does what it says, and does it well. 1 by JeffH First time install. I love it! First time install. I love it! 1 by DebScott Read above comments. The author is nice but does not have the time for this project anymore.EXAS-2: a two-site ELISA for quantitation of human antibodies to peanut protein. A two-site enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay was developed and validated for quantitation of IgG antibodies to peanut protein (APA). This assay consists of a solid-phase enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay for total IgG and a direct immunoelectrophoresis system for detecting IgG antibody to peanut protein. The IgG standard curves were parallel for both ELISA and immunoelectrophoresis. The IgG recovery for the total IgG ELISA assay was 98% for six serial dilutions of human serum containing known levels of total IgG. Also, the recovery of IgG antibodies to APA was 97% for six serial dilutions of human sera containing known levels of APA. The lower detection limit of the IgG total ELISA was 0.11 ng/ml and the lower detection limit of the IgG ELISA for APA was 0.2 ng/ml. With these assays, we studied 20 samples from 7 asymptomatic peanut-sensitized children, 20 samples from 4 non-atopic control children, and 100 samples from peanut-sensitized adult patients.
