In the heart of a not-so-distant future, humanity has destroyed the surface world and now lives in gigantic space habitats in orbit. The Moon is mankind's new life-saver, and you'll have to work your way through generations of disturbing and psychotic criminals to change that. Over a decade ago, a lighthouse on the Moon broke down. The lighthouse was brought back to life but with a condition: it had to be fixed for the whole of humanity. Never dream of stopping. You play as Rachel, an engineer of the first lighthouse generation that has been twisted by life in a space habitat. Over the course of your lifetime you have broken this generation apart in an attempt to unroot yourselves from the station. Your mission has been not only to lead the suicide of the station but to do it in a way that will destroy the original lighthouse as well. All in a day's work. Flowing Lights is a puzzle game about a lighthouse that also happens to be a bullet hell in the truest sense of the word. Run, shoot, jump, run, shoot, smash, get loot, shoot, unlock levels, unlock secrets, smash, unlock levels, unlock secrets, get loot, unlock levels, unlock secrets, get loot, unlock levels and that's just the first half. THE END Flowing Lights is a short but mind-bending and absorbing bullet hell. The puzzles may not be deep but they do what they do well and they get away from the puzzle bullet hell genre as much as possible. The level design, story, enemies and bosses are all excellent, and the reception around the game has been phenomenal. A final note for those reading this: Flowing Lights is currently in development and now has an itch.com crowdfunding campaign live. There is a great chance that Flowing Lights will get the chance to be released, and if it does, it will be an excellent game. About This Game: Flowing Lights puts you in the shoes of a lighthouse keeper in a procedurally generated environment. The goal of the game is to watch over the collection of twisted people that have become a soul-scarring blight of slowly gaining levels. The game combines role-playing elements, bullet hell, and light puzzle elements. Solving puzzles and wiping out hordes of enemies is a core component of this game. The story and characters follow a "lonely hero" narrative where you take on the role of Rachel, the troubled guardian of the lighthouse. You will need c9d1549cdd

Kasumi Kawamura lives in a world where everything is connected; where the future leaves its mark on the present, and the past is never completely dead. For some reason, she has been thrown into a different timeline, and now, she desperately tries to get back to her own time and save it from the onslaught of various personalities that seem to be missing a sense of sanity. While Kasumi is busy trying to figure out how and why she has been sent to an alternate timeline, she is also distracted by the fact that a mysterious and sinister organization called the Guardians of the Void are recruiting her friends (all of which have signs of being possessed by a "reborn" version of themselves) and their professor's niece, Yue, to participate in a project that may be trying to fix the timeline or, worse, change it completely. As Kasumi sees firsthand how people are being afflicted by a terrible "nightmare" condition and starts to encounter the ghosts of all the dead students, who are also being possessed by these "nightmares", she must come to grips with the fact that her real life might be in peril, as she is now trapped in this parallel world and can never get home. Features: * Gameplay with multiple endings. * Graphics that combine 2D and 3D models in order to make the game completely unique. * Characters that will leave you with a dramatic story. * Various voices from famous Japanese actors. * Music in all key styles. * Multiple endings (up to 13 total) * 10 endings (5 per character) * Multiple endings and character endings

City Zero is a cute bullet hell shmup by the legendary Kazuma Kodaka, known for his Raven Blade and Dark Souls.

----- New areas:
-A new boss: Ogre -A new CG: -Stereo graphics! -Gamepad support! New Stage Events:
-After the first boss fight, you will no longer be able to shoot/roll out of the level. -Most enemies have a weakness to a particular weapon, used with the shot command (the cannon will then fire a shot that will target the enemy). -In the final stage, enemies may get stuck in the wall. This forces you to use a speedy roll to take them down, or you risk getting stuck. -If you come too close to a falling block, a large enemy will appear. If you fail to defeat

What's new:

, Thomas the Rhymer and the Wolf and the Cranes In the thirteenth century David I (1124-53) asserted his Scottish kingship by seizing the lands of the Scottish southern Picts. His son and successor, William I (1153-89), conquered both the country and the favour of the Church, but David II's (1214-53) tribulations in England, the last of the Scottish Stuarts, drew attention to the situation in Scotland. He himself had kings crowned by the Archbishop of York, Thomas Becket, Thomas a Becket's brother Henry, and his brother Edward. Islay was established as a rex miles, the area of the Moray Firth between Inverness and Moray. Thomas the Rhymer's Land, in Aberdeenshire, lay east of the Firth, while the Kingdom of Moray lay west. In 1158 Thomas the Rhymer's prophecy was written down in the English Annals. Islay was later incorporated into Moray, and Thomas the Rhymer's prophecy seems to relate to this. Years later a series of minor chapels were built to commemorate the prophecy. Of these, Alloa, Aboyne, Lauchliebank and Dollar each have a chapel, and Kinloch Laggan is a ruin. The will is still read there at its annual meeting. The Wolf and the Cranes. In 1164 the English planted a colony on Mann, with a fort, watch tower and prison. These were known as Wolf and Cranes Forts. The English calling them and Inch Kenneth after a Manx natural feature called, also after a Manx legend, 'Cranesfort'. Without knowing the reason for this name they laid foundations on both islands. But when the weather stopped the reason for the name of a Manx harbour was known so the reason for the initial name of the English burghs was disregarded. On the last day, 1862, a loud explosion shattered the beach below the Cockle Ness battery. Later on Richard Bruce discovered in a well, at the cross on the old tel hill, that two cannon balls dropped into it, on that same day, in 1588, 1587 and 1586. They all had maker's marks on them! He also found written in the sand, "From Edinburgh etc! My Lord Mordaunt." There is evidence of what the beach looked like in the early nineteenth
